

MULTILATERAL AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS

Definition of the constituency in the HDC

The Multilateral and Intergovernmental Organizations Constituency is comprised of organizations consisting of member states. These organizations are usually created by treaty involving two or more countries that are aligned towards a specific cause or issue.

Constituency Membership

The constituency currently includes;

- World Health Organization
- UNFPA
- UNICEF
- UNAIDS
- UN Foundation
- Other United Nations Agencies
- World Bank Group

Added value of the constituency in the HDC

The HDC Multilateral and Intergovernmental Organizations Constituency plays a key role for the HDC to achieve its mission and achieve its 3 objectives (increasing capacity of HIS, aligning investments and contextualizing global tools) by:

- Being key implementation partners at national and subnational levels;
- Supporting alignment of financial and technical resources at all levels;
- Supporting the collection, analysis and use of health data (especially in contexts with weak government systems and from communities) to guide policy, planning and budgeting at national level;
- Strengthening accountability processes for governments and stimulate participation of all relevant stakeholders;
- Supporting approaches to contextualize global products and tools for the needs of local communities and increase use of data for planning and implementations at local levels.

Constituency focus 2020-2023

- Adaptation and promotion of global tools for country context
- Review of current status of alignment of HIS technical and financial investments in HDC countries
- Support to government identified data and digital health priorities across HDC focus countries
